

BROWN
EMERGENCY
MEDICINE

55 CLAVERICK STREET
PROVIDENCE, RI 02903
401- 444-5826

ANNOUNCEMENT

Brown Emergency Medicine Minority Visiting Scholars Program

Brown Emergency Medicine is committed to the increasing Diversity, Equity and Inclusion within the physician workforce. This program is an opportunity for resident physicians from underrepresented minority (URM) and disadvantaged backgrounds to interact with and develop mentoring relationships with leaders in the Department of Emergency Medicine at Brown University. The awardee will identify a subspecialty area of interest, spend time participating in subspecialty division/program meetings, gain exposure to ongoing research projects, and have dedicated sessions with both division/program and department leadership. Participants will also have the opportunity to collaborate with members from the Brown Minority House Staff Association (BMHA).

Additionally, the awardee will have the opportunity to work clinically in the emergency department at Rhode Island Hospital—the region’s only adult level I trauma and burn center which cares for >100, 000 patients annually. Awardees will also have the opportunity to collaborate with residents and faculty and will receive mentorship from the members of the Brown Minority House Staff Association (BMHA).

Clinical Program/Division Opportunities

(to read more about fellowship programs go to <https://www.brownemresidency.org/fellowships>)

- Disaster Medicine & Emergency Preparedness
- Emergency Medical Services
- Global Health
- Healthcare Leadership & Administration
- Injury Prevention Research
- Medical Education Research
- Medical Simulation
- Pediatric Emergency Medicine
- Sex and Gender in Emergency Medicine
- Emergency Ultrasound

Providence, RI

Providence is a “majority minority” city due to its diverse population with 38% of the population Latinx, 16% Black/African American, 6.4% Asian and 1.4% Native American/Alaskan Native. Providence is also an active refugee resettlement site, serving as a new home to refugees from all over the world with over 78 unique languages spoken by RI Hospital ED population.

Eligibility

Applicants must be in the final 2-3 years of training in good academic standing at a U.S.-accredited emergency medicine residency.

Stipend

4-6 stipends of $2000 will be awarded annually for travel, housing and/or personal expenses. Housing resources are available.

Application Process

Please email Wendy Wesley (WWesley@lifespan.org) to access the online application system. Applicants will be reviewed on a rolling basis.

BROWN PHYSICIANS, INC.

A Clinical, Research and Teaching Affiliate of the Alpert Medical School of Brown University.